 consultation on the "market opening during typhoon" was hasty and partial, The Hong Kong Securities & Futures Professionals Association (HKSFPA) said. The safety of practitioners and investors should be under a core consideration.

Although it is expected that all operations should be conducted electronically and remotely during adverse weather, immediate on-site attendance is still required for any system accidents or hardware problems encountered.

Moreover, in order to realize normal market opening for trading, it is necessary for other industries to make complementary efforts. Therefore, the increase in floating population is considered to be a cost that the community needs to be concerned about. (HK stocks quote is delayed for at least 15 mins.
